

The wife of Amasa Foulke, near Cicero, Hamilton county, was killed in her bed on the morning of the 15th, by a pistol shot. Her husband, who occupied a lounge near the bed, stated that he was awakened by the report, and sprang up to see two men in the room. He pursued them to the kitchen where one of them shot him through the arm and then they escaped. The grand jury it seems doubt Mr. Foulke's story, and have found a true bill against him for the murder.
