

THE danger of hasty conviction upon circumstantial evidence alone receives another strong proof in a special from Noblesville, Some time ago the wife of Amasa Foulke, a Quaker citizen of Hamilton county, was found dead in bed. The husband was tried for the crime of her murder and convicted. He secured a new trial and was acquitted. Now a fellow named Tom Barker, on his deathbed, confess to having been the murderer of Mrs. Foulke.